FINE ANCIENT TOMB

A tomb, believed to be about 3,000 years old, has been discovered at Caterline, four miles from Stonehaven, according to the Stonehaven correspondent of the London Daily News.

While James Scott was digging in a field his spade struck a large stone slab. He continued digging and exposed to view three layers of stones.

He sent for Rev. Mr. Fraser of Kinross, an antiquarian. With assistance the large stones were removed, and a grave was revealed containing the skeleton of a fully-grown man, lying on his left side, with an earthenware food urn beside him.

Mr. Fraser expressed the belief that the remains belonged to the Bronze age, and might possibly be 3,000 years old. The greater part of the urn is in a good state of preservation.

COMPLETE

He had stopped to talk with his friend's little child. "We have some little children at our house," he said to her.

"How many?" she asked.

"Six of them, three boys and three girls."

"My, my!" she spoke up, gravely, "then you have a whole set, haven't you?"

VALVELESS INNER TUBE

An inner tube for motor tires has been invented that is without a valve. Air is pumped into it by means of a small hollow needle. When the tube is fully inflated and the needle withdrawn, the tube automatically seals the puncture with a substance it contains. Before the tire is mounted, it is necessary to fill the opening in the rim for the valve with a rubber plug.

THEIR LUCK IN EVEN NUMBER

Indiana People Will Take Issue With the Theory Put Forward by "Rory O'Moore."

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Terrell and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wills, of Pittsboro, say they have final proof that the number 6 is a lucky number. They care nothing about No. 13, No. 7, No. 23 or any other number of mystic fame. They pin their faith to No. 6. And this is why:

Nora Jean Terrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terrell, was born at one minute to 12 o'clock noon on Friday, March 16, 1923. It will be noted that this was the sixth day of the week. Ruth Edwina Wills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wills, was born at the same hospital on the same day at 12:05 o'clock p. m., just six minutes after the birth of Norma Jean Terrell.

Furthermore, Norma Jean weighed seven pounds and one ounce, or just six ounces more than Ruth Edwina weighed, which was six pounds and eleven ounces. In addition to this it is shown by records that the Terrells were married six years ago and just six days before the Wills were married. Mrs. Terrell and Mrs. Wills are sisters. Pittsboro is about six miles from Danville.—Indianapolis News.

ODD SOURCES OF MEDICINE

Coal and Many Other Minerals Furnish Physicians With Drugs Which Are of High Importance.

Many medicines in common use come from quite unexpected sources.

Who, for instance, would connect antipyrine, the remedy for headaches, with coal? Yet it is one of the by-products of "black diamonds."

Epsom salt and magnesia, a mild aperient, occur frequently in beds of limestone.

On some parts of the coast, on high cliffs overlooking the sea, grows a pretty little blue flower called the squill. The bulb of this is the foundation of various remedies.

Plants of the aconite family are full of a most powerful poison, which is useful in the treatment of gout, neuralgia, rheumatism, and heart affection.

Campbor is obtained in a curious way. Chips of camphor-wood are placed in earthenware vessels closed at the top. A strong current of steam is then driven into the vessels, which forces the evaporated camphor to the top of the pots, where it condenses into white crystals, which are afterward collected.

Glycerine and soap have a common foundation, the former being a by-product of the latter. At one time the glycerine was allowed to flow away as useless during the manufacture; now, of course, it is collected carefully.

IN HARD LUCK

ADDS TO BEAUTY OF CAPITAL

Sculptor's Idea Furnishes an Addition to the Many Beautiful Statues That Adorn Copenhagen.

Copenhagen, already rich in monuments and statues, is about to add another to its public sculptures. The city of Rome some time ago presented to the city of Copenhagen a beautiful classic column with a Dante relief, and it was decided that it should be erected as a Dante monument on a square to be named Dante square. The king of Italy laid the foundation stone during his visit to Copenhagen last year, but there has been doubt as to how the column should be treated at the top. It was first intended that an antique capital should solve the problem, but tests proved this unsatisfactory. Professor Utzon-Frank, the sculptor, was appealed to, and he has succeeded in finding a way out of the dilemma, which is possessed of great artistic merit and beauty. He places on the top of the column a bronze figure of Beatrice in a loose classic garment with a gilded laurel wreath round her head. This figure will be more than two meters high, the pedestal two meters and the column itself rather more than six meters high.

EXPANSION OF EIFFEL TOWER

Device Has Shown That the Edifice Is Susceptible to the Slightest Change in Temperature.

Some time ago the subdirector of the international bureau of weights and measures in Paris made a contrivance that registers the vertical expansion and contraction of the Eiffel tower. To a stake at the foot of the tower the official fastened a wire made of iron and nickel, and incapable of expansion or shrinkage. He attached the other end of the wire to the lever of a register on the second platform, about three hundred and eighty feet above the ground.

The charts from the register show that the great tower is extremely susceptible to the slightest change in temperature. Although the greatest variation in the height of the tower amounts to only a little over two and one-half inches, the records of the register show that a passing cloud, a sudden burst of sunshine, or a heavy shower, exert a marked effect upon the height of the structure.

The members of the geographical service of the army also have studied the horizontal movements of the 7,000-ton tower. They find that even in a ninety-mile gale the oscillations of the summit amount to scarcely four inches.—Illustrated World.

EXPLAINING ORIGIN OF COAL

Trees and Vegetable Matter, Carbonized by Hot Lava, the Foundation, According to Professor.

The origin of coal has been discovered, says Prof. Barton Scammell, president of the Radium institute at Dover, England. He has been engaged in research work with lava from Mount Vesuvius, which is being used as fertilizer, and says this led to the discovery that the layers of binds—the mysterious substances found on the top and bottom of all coal seams—are identical in analysis with lava. The bind contains lime, iron, magnesium, potash and other elements required by plant life and, when made radioactive with solutions of radio phosphate of potash, it absorbs nitrogen in the air and forms a perfect fertilizer. The origin of coal is thus explained by Professor Scammell. It is a cellulose of trees and vegetable matter, carbonized by hot lava, thus forming coal, and sunk into the depth of earth by disturbances of the earth's crust at a remote period. He claims that conversion of the bind, now a waste product, into fertilizer will enrich the mining and agricultural industries.

NOT A GIFT OF THE GODS

Personal Magnetism Something That Can Be Cultivated Through Proper Course of Thinking.

"The belief that personal magnetism is a gift of the gods and that no man may come by it unless he is born with it, is erroneous," says Addington Bruce in Forbes Magazine, "as may be shown even by a mere enumeration of the factors which in combination constitute personal magnetism."

"Foremost among these are self-confidence, enthusiasm, vigor in thought and action, and, in especial, human sympathy. Study the personality of any man you know to be magnetic, in the sense of attracting others and exercising a marked influence over them, and always you will find him self-confident, enthusiastic, vigorous and sympathetic."

"It is also through habitually thinking vigorously, courageously, cheerfully; through habitually maintaining a manfully erect posture, at once expressive of vigor and creative of it. Such a posture, I may add, is also expressive and creative of that other prime ingredient in personal magnetism—self-confidence."

"Sympathy is of paramount importance in the developing of personal magnetism. The most confident, enthusiastic and vigorous of men will find his influence over others diminished in proportion as he is deficient in human sympathy. This being so, and sympathy being in itself one of the most precious of personal assets, its acquisition should be sought by all."

RANDOM COMMENT

Ex-President Wilson assured Lord Robert Cecil that the United States would join the league of nations. Lord Robert should not get too hopeful, however. Up until election night Mr. Wilson was absolutely confident that Gov. Cox would be elected on the league issue.

The administration takes the position that the money which Europe borrowed during the war came from the liberty loans and hence the money which comes back from Europe should be used to retire our own war bonds. That looks like good business judgment.

Lord Robert could not tell what Americans really think about the league because they were all so polite to him. Evidently he couldn't help admiring the way we dissembled our love for the league by kicking it down stairs.

Every time one gets the notion that perhaps something ought to be done to save Europe one European nation or another does something to create doubt whether Europe is worth saving.

There is a general shortage of farm labor in Yuma county, even at very high wages, but there remain plenty of fellows in town ready to give advice free.

We doubt whether democrats will ever forgive President Harding because prosperity has returned under his administration.

3-MILE LIMIT UPHELD

NO RUN FOR THE U. S. A. FROM FOREIGN SHIPS

VOLSTEAD CHANGE SEEN AS SHIP LID TIGHTENS

Sea Stores Not Exempt Under Draft Regulations Which Upheld Court Ruling—Congressional Action Seems Certain.

Washington.—Foreign ships are absolutely barred from bringing liquor within the American three-mile limit—as cargo or sea stores. These iron-clad regulations follow the letter of the supreme court decision rigidly, leaving no technical loopholes. Foreign diplomats of seven nations, making frequent and insistent protests, had hoped that liquor brought as sea stores would be classed as medical liquor to avoid the letter of the law. Secretary Mellon, making no concession on this point, has gone further and surrounded the medicinal liquor exemption with such a labyrinth of red tape that action by congress in modifying the Volstead act is almost inevitable. Adhering to the supreme court decision, the regulations forbid merchant vessels, domestic or foreign, from bringing within the three-mile limit liquor cargoes or liquor sea stores for beverage purposes. The regulations go into effect June 10.

WETS MAY ADVOCATE GOV. SMITH FOR PRESIDENCY

New York.—The majority sentiment among Democratic leaders appears opposed to Governor Smith's proposal to modify the Volstead act, so that each state may sell individually what constitutes an intoxicating beverage. It is upon this issue that the wets intend to seek Smith's nomination as the Democratic candidate for president. An aggressive campaign by the wets during the next twelve months may change that opinion before the nominating convention meets. But a canvass of sentiment indicates that if the convention was to meet today Smith could not win the presidential nomination. Thus far in most of the southern states, except Louisiana, they have rejected Smith's issue. Kansas, typical of most middle western states also is opposed.

2,000 PARIS COMMUNISTS SPURN ROYALISTIC PROPAGANDA

ALLIES BOW TO MOSLEM'S TERMS AT LAUSANNE PARLEY

Lausanne.—Thanks to the allies complete surrender in the past week on the important questions of indemnities and capitulations, as well as minor points in the Near East conference, all difficulties appear now to have been removed. Signing of the peace treaty, which it is believed will take place within a fortnight, marks the end of all World War hostilities.

CROCKER FEELS SURE SAN FRANCISCO WINS

Upham, Republican National Treasurer, is Carrying a Lone Fight for Chicago—Cabinet Members Favor San Francisco.

San Francisco.—The next Republican presidential candidate will be nominated in San Francisco is the message brought by William H. Crocker, Republican national committeeman for California and member of the citizens' convention committee, just home from an extended trip through the east.

In the interests of obtaining the 1924 Republican convention for San Francisco, Mr. Crocker took advantage of his vacation visit in New York and Washington to test the attitude of eastern delegates and to spread the "gospel" of San Francisco's offer for the next national meeting.

"The sentiment all through the east is so strong for San Francisco that the question of who will get the convention no longer remains in doubt in my mind," said Mr. Crocker. "It is with all seriousness and sincerity that I say the Republicans will nominate their presidential candidate here in this city."

"I have talked with members of the Republican national committee, cabinet officials and many prominent party figures, including Nicholas Murray Butler. They were all outspoken in their favoritism for San Francisco and equally pronounced in their opposition for Chicago. The only exception I found was that of Frederick Upham, treasurer of the national committee, who is fighting a lone hand for his home city."

The Mystic Shrines of this city, Oakland, Los Angeles and Hawaii have pledged their support of securing both the Republican and Democratic convention for San Francisco according to the announcement made by Imperial Potentate James McCandless and George Filmer of this city prior to their departure for the east.

DEVICE NOW MAKES INSIDE OF MAN'S HEART VISIBLE

Chicago.—Science is enabled to see inside a beating heart with an instrument the perfection of which was divulged here at a meeting of the American association of thoracic surgeons. This instrument, known as the cardioscope, was explained by Dr. Huff S. Allen of George Washington University, in whose laboratories it was perfected, after two years of experimenting.

Nearly 1,000 of Orange county's boy scouts, representing troops from all cities of the district, participated in the scout's field meet at Santa Ana. George Ballouston of Jackson, a woodchopper and religious fanatic, was arrested for turning handprints in the Methodist church at that place.

Elks from all over the state gathered for the corner stone laying of the $215,000 home of Hollister lodge. The celebration opened with a monster parade.

Plans for Sierra Madre's $30,000 park bonds for which were recently voted, are under way. The city trustees have named the commission and park superintendent.

It required the combined efforts of the sheriff of Lake county and four assistants to enforce an ejection edict against Charles Palmer and wife from a ranch near Lakeport. Nevada county fruit prospects are excellent says a report from Nevada City. Last year the Bartlett pear yield broke all records, which will not be equaled this season.

Justice John Cox of Santa Ana, known as the "nemesis of speeders" was clocked at forty-one miles an hour by Motorcyclist Officer Myers and landed a pink speed tag.

B. O. McCormick, vice-president of the Southern Pacific, was painfully injured at Santa Barbara when a switch engine collided with his private car and hurled it from a siding.

Santa Barbara will be the mecca of tennis stars of the Pacific coast June 15, 16 and 17 when the leading net wizards will participate in an invitational tournament in that city.

Delegates from Sacramento, Ben All temple of Shriners to the Washington convales took with them a rose bowl made of gold taken from the Colma field, a present for Mrs. Warren G. Harding.

Excavators near Santa Monica uncovered what apparently are ancient stone guns, probably used centuries ago by whatever race then inhabited that section. Several neatly cut teeth were intact.

A human skull in an almost perfect state of preservation, found in the shell mound in Tansals park near Mill Valley, has been offered to the University of California. All the bones are intact and nearly all the teeth in place.

San Francisco's Down Town association has asked Governor Richardson to approve the bill now before him for the transfer from the state to San Francisco of twelve blocks of land along the Marina for park development of the city.

Amos M. Ayers of Hanford, one of the state's pioneer educators, was buried at that place with full Masonic honors. Deceased was a graduate of Wooster college, Ohio, and came to California in 1882 and taught his first school in Yolo county.

Chico, testing 75 per cent alcohol, broke into court at Marysville and brought a declaration from the district attorney that he would at once put a stop to the sale.

The $35,000 Masonic temple at Cortland was dedicated with Grand Master William A. Sherman of San Francisco and other grand lodge officers in attendance.

Gerald Raab and Harding Tharp, Sutter county young men, were attacked by a ferocious wildcat in the wilds of Plumas county while repairing their car which had stalled on the road.

State Capital Letter

Sacramento.—Plans for cutting down the work and expenditures of the state teachers' college and special schools, in order to bring the cost of operation of these institutions down to a point which will conform with the reduced budget for the next biennial period were made at a conference in Oakland between Will C. Wood, state director of education, and the presidents of the teachers' colleges. Wood announced that it was found necessary for the department of education to absorb a net loss of $154,758 in the appropriations for the division of normal and special schools during the next two years. He said it was decided that no expenditures from state funds would be made for the maintenance of summer sessions at San Francisco, Chico and Fresno. Last year these summer sessions enrolled approximately 1,500 teachers who were taking advanced work. However, the department will permit in each instance an association of teachers and students to maintain summer sessions at their own expense. The students will in each case have to bear the total expense for maintaining the summer schools in these three institutions.

Cooperation of the State Board of Prison directors in putting San Quentin penitentiary on "an economical, efficient and businesslike basis" was asked in a letter from Governor Richardson. In the statement the governor declared that the board of control was unanimous in the opinion that the business administration at San Quentin has not been efficient and that proper management would have avoided a deficiency appropriation of $100,000. The governor also pointed out that Polson prison has kept within its appropriation and said he had written to the prison directors asking their cooperation in the efforts of the administration regarding San Quentin.

Governor Richardson has approved the Rosenbush bill which will permit the state treasurer to accept from individuals funds for the purchase of redwood groves to be used for public park purposes. The state board of forestry is permitted to make surveys of groves of redwood "big trees" suitable for public use and the state is allowed to institute condemnation proceedings and exercise the right of eminent domain for the acquisition of such groves after organizations or individuals have contributed the funds for the purchase of the trees. The measure had the support of the "Save-the-Redwoods League" and was agreed to by the lumber interests.

The governor has signed two automobile regulation bills known as the motor vehicle act and the gas tax act. One of these modifies a number of regulations, the other provides for the substitution of a two cents per gallon tax on gasoline for the present horsepower tax, and also provide that supervisors may appoint traffic officers and these will be paid out of half the collections, which go to the counties. This provision, according to the governor, will make unnecessary the signing of a bill providing for the creation of traffic officers in counties.

Governor Richardson signed assembly bill 1244, authorizing a commission of seven members to work without compensation with the state highway commission in the compilation of a full report on the state highway system, to be rendered to the next legislature. The best plan for procuring the necessary money for the completion of the program, what roads should be built, and the type of paving that should be used, will be among the problems.

Superintendent Wood has announced that he will ask the courts for a writ of mandamus to compel Controller Riley to pay him one per cent of the teachers' college fund for the expenditures of his office on the grounds that Governor Richardson has unlawfully cut out certain "tangibles" of the budget bill rather than eliminating or reducing items of appropriation in the point at issue.

Will H. Marsh, superintendent of the motor vehicle department, estimates the gasoline tax will bring in $11,000,000 during the next biennium and the flat registration fee of $5 per car will collect $3,500,000. The weight schedule tax provided for in the motor vehicle act is expected to raise revenue of $1,200,000. The gasoline tax will become effective for the last quarter of this year.

A. J. Pillsbury, vice chairman of the state industrial accident commission, has resigned. Pillsbury wrote the governor that he was "not in sympathy with the governor's economy program" and desired to be relieved from his duties.

The State Motor Vehicle department for the first time in its history has issued license plates bearing more than six numerals. Plates bearing 1,000,000 have been issued to the Automobile club of Southern California. The number of licenses issued is nearing 1,000,000.

Judge T. N. Harvey of the Kern county superior court has tendered his resignation to governor Richardson because of ill-health. Effective May 31.

Wife Refused to Pay Reward for Lost Mate

Mrs. Morris Hirschfeld of Chicago, whose husband had been missing three weeks, did a lot of worrying and finally offered a reward of $25 for anyone who would return him to her. A few days ago in the court of domestic relations she renewed on the reward and said she had changed her mind. "No man is worth $25," she declared. Immediately after she published her offer of reward, she said, 20 or more persons telephoned her, telling her that her husband was living in an apartment with an affinity. Mrs. Hirschfeld said she investigated and found it was true.

LOST ARMENIAN BABY IS IDENTIFIED BY SCARS

Premonition of Impending Disaster Impelled Mother to Brand Infant With Knife.

Dinuba, Cal.—A premonition of impending disaster which impelled a mother, now in California, to brand her baby son in Turkey with a knife at the outbreak of the World war, has led to finding the boy among children rescued by Near East relief workers. The brand was no simple mark, but a series of deep perpendicular slashes in two rows across the full width of the boy's shoulders.

Thanks to the brand, Mrs. B. Toroman of this place, is preparing for the reunion with the little son, who had been lost for eight years. The baby was stolen from her when two years old by a Turkish officer near Haradin, in June, 1915, during deportations of Armenians to the Arabian desert. The father died from privations, but the mother escaped to this country.

The mother later began a search for her child and enlisted the aid of Near East workers, who were told of the marks on his body. Miss Caroline McAfee of Kansas City, Mo., now in Syria, heard of the case and watched the throngs of refugee children as they passed through her hands. She heard of the curious brand before she saw it, for the boy was famous for the brand.

The youngster escaped death at the hands of his Turkish captors through the brand. They considered it an ill omen, so sold him for 50 cents to an Armenian family. His new friends were killed and the boy became a wanderer, finally falling into the hands of the American relief workers. The brand has been accepted as proper identification by immigration officials, and the lad has been admitted to be reunited with the mother he does not remember.

PAID TO KEEP "JINX" AWAY

New York Woman Gave the Family Savings to Gypsy to "Honey the Fates."

New York.—Awed by the grim announcement of a gypsy woman that her husband and ten children would meet sudden death unless she furnished regular sums of money to "honey the fates," Mrs. Ester Helfeint gave $500, almost the entire family savings, to a gypsy queen in New York city.

The accused woman is Angelina Carabuto, who appeared in court with a baby strapped to her back, papoose fashion. She was held in $500 bail, pending examination, on an extortion charge.

Mrs. Helfeint said she visited the gypsy on April 18 and was told that unless money was forthcoming her family would be wiped out. Each time the worried mother sacrificed the cash the gypsy would place it in a bucket of water and withdrawing the bills, would apparently set them afire.

King's Statue 5,200 Years Old

Philadelphia.—A statue 5,200 years old has been unearthed in Mesopotamia by the joint expedition of the University of Pennsylvania and the British museum. The report said the statue was found while unearthing the Zigurat gate on the site of Ur of the Chaldees. It is a diorite statue of Ennatum, king of Lagash, who reigned in 3200 B. C.

War Goods Sales to End June 30. Washington.—The War department expects to dispose through its system of sales of practically all its surplus property by the end of the fiscal year on June 30, it was said. Sales for the present fiscal year, it is estimated, will amount to approximately $90,000,000, while for one recent week they amounted to approximately $7,000,000.

PUT ASIDE THE TEMPTATION

Woman Candidate for Political Preference Spurned Bargain That Must Have Been Attractive.

While the woman's vote is confidently expected to—and probably will—clean up politics, it must be admitted that there are times when the temptations, increased by a lifetime of bargain hunting, prove almost irresistible.

A man at the last election was attempting to sell his vote, but the woman candidate refused firmly to be a party to bribery and corruption.

"No, sir," she said. "I will not give you a dollar for it. It is not worth it."

"Take it for 50 cents, lady," urged the man.

"Why didn't you say that before?" she asked. But then honor triumphed. "No," she continued. "No. Not even if you offered to give twice for a dollar seventy-five."—Exchange.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper—Advertisement.

A New Version.

The school was in a suburb and when a boy was late he was expected to register that fact in a book kept for the purpose. The old boys soon discovered that if they didn't sign the book their tardiness was not discovered and nothing was said about it. There was accordingly but few late arrivals recorded.

Willie Winks was, however, a new boy and when the principal visited his room he was surprised to see Willie's name set down for tardiness three days in succession.

"Willie Winks, stand up," he ordered. Willie obeyed.

"What do they teach you at school?" asked the principal, supposing the answer would be "punctuality." But Willie had a better one. "Honesty is the best policy," he said. The principal saw the point.

Hovenweep, Palm Canyon—New National Monuments

THE TOWER, HOHOKAM

JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

HOVENWEEP National Monument has been added to the United States National park system and Palm Canyon National Monument has been well started on its way. Hovenweep lies on both sides of the boundary line between Colorado and Utah, near the only spot in the United States where four states touch, and is reserved because of its prehistoric towers and other impressive masonry structures. Palm Canyon is in southern California and contains many fine specimens of native American palms.

From now on much will appear in print about these two national monuments—which will be variously described as national parks, national forests, national reservations and national monuments, with indiscriminate references to their control by the national park service and the forest service. So what follows seems advisable in order to explain the complications which congress neglects to straighten out.

There are now nineteen national parks with a total of 11,372 square miles. There is one group of twenty-five national monuments (including the two new ones) containing about 1,900 square miles. These national parks and monuments are under control of the national park service, a bureau of the Interior department.

There are seven "national military and other" parks—such as Shiloh, Gettysburg and Lincoln's Birthplace—administered by the War department, which also controls two national monuments—Big Hole Battlefield and Cabrillo.

There are the national forests, with an approximate area of 155,000,000 acres, under the charge of the forest service, a bureau of the Department of Agriculture. There is a group of eleven national monuments containing 510 square miles in charge of the forest service.

The national parks and the national forests are the exact opposite of each other. The national parks are wilderness areas of majestic beauty set aside for purely recreational purposes—public playgrounds for the people. The national forests are industrial and commercial purely—areas set apart for scientific lumbering for a profit and for grazing for a profit.

Some day, it is hoped, congress will straighten out the tangle by putting the national military and other parks, and all the national monuments in charge of the national park service, leaving the national forests to the forest service.

President Harding created the Hovenweep National Monument by proclamation March 2, under the act of 1906 for the preservation of American antiquities, and Dr. Hubert Work, the new secretary of the Interior has now taken over the area in the name of the federal government. Hovenweep is the Indian equivalent for "Deserted Valley," and contains about 800 acres. The Square Tower and the Twin Towers, pictured herewith, can be comfortably reached by automobile. Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, head of the bureau of ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution, recommended the area to the President for a national monument. Doctor Fewkes says of the area and its prehistoric relics:

"Hovenweep contains three groups of structures, the first group called the Square Tower cluster. Some of the finest of all the structures are in this group, the most picturesque of them being Hovenweep castle, the standing walls of which are over fifty feet high. A second group lies three miles to the north, in Holly canyon, and contains some of the most remarkable prehistoric masonry in the United States.

The third group, situated on Cajon mesa, is more difficult to reach. The ruins in the Square Tower canyon may be described somewhat as follows: Ruins which have indications of inclosed circular kivas, with mural paintings and banquettes, and closely approximated surrounding rooms. To this class belongs Hovenweep castle, the Hovenweep pueblo and the so-called Unit Type house, the last named belonging to the simplest form of the pure type. Second, there are the ruins, the main feature of which is the absence of a circular kiva. The Twin Towers belong to this second or 'great house' type.

"The largest of the ruins in this canyon is Hovenweep pueblo, situated at the head of the South Fork. Although many of its walls have fallen, there still remains a semicircular great house with high walls conspicuous for some distance. The ruins are a pueblo of rectangular form belonging to the pure type, showing circular depressions identified as kivas, imbedded in collections of square and rectangular rooms, and massive walled buildings on the south side. The standing walls are remains of a conspicuous multi-chambered Dahabed tower.

"Hovenweep castle, like Hovenweep house, has circular kivas compactly imbedded in rectangular rooms arranged about them, indicating the pure type of pueblo. The massive walled semicircular towers and great houses are combined with square rooms and kivas, indicating that it is distinguished by two sections, an eastern and a western, which, united, impart to the whole the shape of the letter T.

"Among the most impressive buildings in Square Tower canyon are the Twin towers. They stand on the south side of the canyon on a rock isolated by a cleft from the adjoining cliffs, the larger of the towers having an oval ground plan while the smaller is horseshoe shaped.

The pueblo known as Unit Type house is one of the most interesting ruins in the Hovenweep. It is situated on the very edge of the canyon of the North Fork, not far from where it begins. It is the simplest form of prehistoric pueblo of a pure type, made up of a centrally-placed circular ceremonial room.

"In Holly canyon the towers may be approached on foot. The towers in this canyon show some of the finest masonry to be found on the reservation, one of the finest of them, Holly tower, built on a great rock, its tip rising to a height level with the mesa.

BESSIE

By MOLLY MATHER

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

MISS MORTIMER turned from the advertising column she had been reading to consult with her housekeeper. Mrs. Bundy had been a long time in Miss Mortimer's employ.

"This is the most unusual thing I ever read, Eliza," she said, "it would almost seem to be written for myself. But I have so lost faith in human beings that I would fear to harbor a stranger." Susan Mortimer sighed deeply.

Sympathetically, Mrs. Bundy looked up from her dusting. "Now, Miss Susan," she remarked, "I would not be discouraged, though I'm not saying you haven't cause. Bessie, however, was not ungrateful of your kindness in taking her in and making first a maid, then a real companion of her. Bessie felt in love, and I'm sure she felt badly at leaving you—if it was to get married. What's this queer advertisement you're speaking about?"

"Miss Mortimer bent over the newspaper."

"Young woman wishes to take the place of a true daughter in home of widowed or lonely woman. References exchanged."

"Now the place of a true daughter," said Miss Mortimer thoughtfully, "would mean more than a companion, Eliza, and if anyone is in need of the ministrations of a kindly relative at present, it is myself."

"I believe," she said slowly, "that I'm lonely enough to try out this unusual young lady."

Adeline Winthrop was engaged for her peculiar position. Shyly, as she and Miss Mortimer sat one day together, the new daughter told the story of the advertisement:

"I had taken care of mother during the years of invalidism before her death, and we had been such comforting companions that when I was left quite alone, without money, why, the daughter business seemed to be the only attribute I had. So it must have been inspiration which worded that message for me, and sent it on to your paper."

"It must have been," Miss Mortimer sincerely replied. "The short time that you have been with me, Bessie—I hope you do not mind my referring to you as Bessie—you see I had Bessie with me a good while, and had hoped to keep her always; she seems to come back to me—though I must admit in a finer way—when I give you her name."

"Why," asked the girl, "do you not call me Bessie, if it is easier for you? Mrs. Bundy is always making the same mistake."

Miss Mortimer patted her friend's hand. "It is like you to suggest that," she said, "and I will call you Bessie, as you do not mind. So, Bessie, my dear, will you look over my mail this morning and see what work we have before us?"

The daughter-companion selected a typewritten letter at the top, and glanced through the contents; when she saw the signature she sat silent.

"Please," Miss Mortimer directed, "read the letter aloud."

It was a good-natured plea for a visit from one who signed himself "Your graceless, but unrepentant nephew, Jim."

Miss Mortimer's lips tightened, even as her eyes grew wet.

"Unrepentant," she muttered; "he might have written, 'ungrateful.' I took that boy when he was an orphaned baby and gave up to his care most of my own youth. He was a delicate child. Then I sent him to college and later started him in his profession. I gave him all the love of a solely devoted heart and in return had hoped to be cared for in my old age. As soon as clients began to come to James Warren's law office he decided to marry some nobody of a girl and go to housekeeping in a city flat. Leaving me here uncaring in my solitude."

"If you had not assured me in the beginning that no thought of promise of marriage was before you I should never have given you the way of my affection, Bessie. Desertion hurts too much."

"I told you the truth," Bessie answered tonelessly. "Sometimes I think I have renounced marriage forever. Shall I tell you why?"

"Tell me," the older woman said, diverted from her letter.

"When my father died a young lawyer came to straighten our affairs. He was kind and true, and mother liked him very much. So he became our friend; when mother died he asked me to be his wife. I loved him dearly—he was all that I had then—all I seemed to need. One day, in grief, he showed me a letter. It was written by the aunt who had reared him. She said that if he insisted in his intention to marry she would disown and disinheret him, for his ingratitude. So—I gave him up. Could I let him sacrifice all that would mean? And I went away where he might not find me—and wrote the advertisement which brought me to you. I did not know that you were James Warren's aunt; I had not heard your name. And he—does Jim know that I am here?"

"No," she answered gently, "he does not know. In the one letter I have written him, I referred to my companion as 'Bessie.' So that is why you have forewarned marriage—that a selfish old woman's plan might be realized. Will you take this dictation now, to 'our Jim'?"

"Dear Boy—Come as soon as you can, to your repentant aunt. I have a happy surprise for you.—Susan."

A CUPFUL OF SOUR CREAM

Farmers often ask, "What can be done with the surplus sour cream?"

A city woman never is, or very seldom is, embarrassed with such riches. Countless delectable dishes may be prepared with sour cream. One is the most delicious of spice cakes, using the cream in place of milk in the recipe and adding such proportion of shortening as the usual recipe requires, allowing for the richness of the cream.

One or two tablespoonsful of sour cream in a soup gives a zest that is entirely lacking in sweet cream, adding richness and smoothness to the soup.

Roast veal or roast chicken well-browned and then cooked with one cupful of sour cream poured over it, basting frequently, is delicious.

Steak With Sour Cream.—Cut steak in serving-sized pieces, brown, put in to a baking dish and pour the gravy from the pan over it. Add a sauce, using one cupful of sour cream, two tablespoonsful of flour, one tablespoonful of onion juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and one-fourth cupful of dried and soaked mushrooms. Bake in a slow oven. This sauce is also with fish or hamburger steak.

Chicken Fricassee.—Chop one onion and fry in fat until yellow; add paprika. Cut up a chicken and fry in the fat until a golden brown, add one cupful of water with a tablespoonful of parsley and simmer until tender. Pour a cupful of hot sour cream over the chicken and serve sprinkled with minced parsley and salt and paprika to taste.

Scalloped Potatoes and Onions.—Put a layer of sliced potatoes in a baking dish, cover with a layer of sliced onions, adding seasonings and parsley. Repeat and pour over the dish enough sour cream to almost cover. Cover the dish and bake until the vegetables are done.

Boiled Cauliflower With Dressing.—Heat one-half cupful of sour cream, adding salt and pepper to season, pour over hot boiled cauliflower and serve at once.

Whatever be the origin or extent of the mental habitations that we occupy, for their furniture we are responsible.—Edgar Goodspeed.

REASONABLE GOOD THINGS

A baked apple is always palatable and is welcome at any meal.

Arlington Apples.—Core some good-flavored apples and fill the cavity with two tablespoonsful of maple sugar and a piece of butter. Bake in hot water to one-quarter the depth of the apples. Serve cold, with or without cream.

Chicken Pie.—Cover a chicken (after cutting at the joints) with boiling water and cook until tender. Add one cupful of diced celery, one carrot cut in dice, two large onions sliced. When the chicken and vegetables are tender remove the fowl and place in a casserole, add six parboiled potatoes, the celery, carrot and onions. Thicken the gravy with flour and butter well mixed, add seasoning, cover with a rich baking powder biscuit crust, leaving a vent for the steam to escape and bake until well done. Add a cupful of cream just a few minutes before taking from the oven.

Maple Dreams.—Cut bread in one-quarter-inch slices; remove the crusts and butter. Cover a slice with a layer of chopped dates; butter another slice and cover, pressing the slices together to form a sandwich. Cut in any shape, dip in egg and milk and saute to a light brown. Serve with:

Lum Lum.—Take two cupfuls of diced cooked sweet potatoes; add one cupful of diced apple and add four tablespoonsful of maple syrup and a bit of salt and three tablespoonsful of bacon fat. Bake in a covered dish; add one-half cupful of water. Remove the cover and brown after baking forty-five minutes. Bake one hour.

Maple Sauce.—Take one cupful of maple syrup, one-quarter cupful of cold water, one tablespoonful each of cornstarch and sugar. Heat the syrup, add the cornstarch mixed with cold water. Cook until clear, then add the butter. Pour around the dreams and serve at once.

Pineapple Salad.—Cook one egg yolk, one teaspoonful of lemon juice over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Cool; season highly with tabasco, then beat one-quarter of a cupful of sour cream until thick, and fold it into the first mixture with one-quarter of a cupful of finely-grated cheese. Coldish served with sour cream for the white sauce is a most appetizing and unusual dish.

The virtuous feeling of having been saying must be carefully analyzed, for we may be "poorly wise and proud foolish."

NEARLY COOKED ARM, SAYS RILEY

But Nothing Relieved Neuritis Until He Got Tanlac, States S. F. Citizen.

Harry J. Riley in an interview at his office, 1025 Hearst Building, San Francisco, the other day, gave out the following facts regarding the benefits he has derived from Tanlac:

"Tanalac has been of such wonderful help to me that I regard it a duty to recommend it. I was suffering from neuritis that was not only painful but was gradually creeping up into my shoulder so that I was afraid it might spread over my entire body. There were constant pains all through my arm and at night it hurt so bad I could hardly sleep a wink. I used liniments and hot applications until my arm was nearly cooked, and, in fact, tried everything, including baths, but could get no relief. Anyone would have to have neuritis to know how I suffered."

"One day a friend told me to get a bottle of Tanlac. Well, I took his advice, and the treatment has put an end to the neuritis completely. It also acted as a splendid all-around tonic and made me feel much better in every way. I am enjoying the best of health and have no hesitancy in recommending Tanlac to anyone."

Tanalac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Where to Send Her a Question.

Mary is the contrary daughter of an Indianapolis woman. Contrary hardly expresses it. It is told of her that when company called the other day, her mother wished her to be still, and she made lots of noise, then wished her to speak, and she wouldn't say a word. When her mother wished the little girl to sit on her lap she would not, but when the mother asked not to be bothered, the child asked to sit on her lap. "Twas always thus—the little girl doing exactly the thing her mother wished her not to do—until the six-year-old brother made this somewhat innocent remark:

"Mom, when Mary dies, God just won't know where to send her."

Aspirin

Say "Bayer" and Insist!

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe for millions for Cold, Headache, Toothache, Lumbago, Earsache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Pain, Pain.

Accept "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" only. Each unbroken package contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoclonalacetic Acid of Salicylic Acid.—Advertisement.

The Price of 25 Cents Worth.

Maggie was fat, old and colored, and suffered from rheumatism. A friend who suffered from the same ailment had obtained some relief from a slave. Nothing would do but for Maggie to have some, so she went to the nearest store.

"I have had rheumatism for 15 years and want 25 cents' worth of something to cure it," she said.

The clerk smiled and got her the package. When he returned Maggie had a quarter on the counter and asked:

"How much?"

World War Medals.

A bill is to be introduced at the next session of the New York state legislature to award World War service medals to officers of draft boards, here is a feeling in the "military establishment," however, that the warlike of war decorations "has about as far as possible without, enough making such dispositions as normal, lessening their significance."

How is Gas Measured?

In Paris, Madam orders a ribbon "10 centimeters" wide—we must translate that to "4 inches" to picture its width.

"32 drachms" tells a story to the druggist—we must think "4 ounces," to see the bottle in our mind's eye.

The New England housewife buys potatoes by the "peck"—we figure their price at so much a pound.

And how is gas measured? Not by the inch or pound, but by the cubic foot (c.f.). Your gas meter records the number of cubic feet you use. Look at it every now and then. You will be surprised to see how long it takes to measure 1,000 cubic feet.

If you do not know how to read your gas meter, ask at any P G and E office for free folder, "How to Read Your Gas Meter." Ask also to see the schedule of gas rates that applies in your community.

Radio Equipment in Every Home Coming

A man has talked to half a million people at one time and his voice was in the reach of fifty million more. Impossible? Yes, were it not for the radio. With the radio nothing as far as audiences are concerned is impossible.

A few nights ago radio fans within listening-in distance of Minneapolis heard a real wedding, with music, advice and kisses such as are common at weddings, all included. The happy couple probably had the largest gathering at their ceremony that ever heard a nuptial knot tied.

Even the imagination cannot place a limit on the future development of radio.

It is entirely probable that within the next ten years radio equipment in every home will be as common as electric lights are today. It will soon have passed the stage of a novelty and be as much a household necessity as the telephone.

Startling Statistics Showing Fatal Automobile Accidents

Figures compiled by the national bureau of casualty and surety underwriters reveal that 14,000 people were killed in the United States last year as a result of automobile accidents.

This represents an increase of 1600, or 12 per cent over 1921. Automobile accidents in 1922 were responsible for 67 per cent of all the vehicular fatalities within the last sixty years, more than four times the number caused by railroad trains and seven times those due to street railways.

The only ray of sunshine in the report is revealed in the fact that while the number of automobiles have increased five fold since 1915 the total number of automobile fatalities has little more than doubled.

Education is apparently the only remedy since traffic regulation has proved a failure. Carelessness at railroad crossings is one of the greatest causes of automobile fatalities, and this in spite of the fact that transportation companies do everything in their power to keep people off the track.

CHANGING TIMES

The picturesque sights of Paris are disappearing one by one. The latest is the sandwich man, whose job is considered that of a lazy person, but the union of sandwich men say the work is too hard for any lazy individual, so their members have decided that they shall quit, to take a long rest. One, however, with a little more initiative than his colleagues, has invented a new kind of board, to be carried on a long stick, illuminated at night. The men who formerly hunted cigar and cigarette butts along the boulevards also are no more. Now cigar butts are left in the streets to be swept away.

WILL NUMBER STEEL

To eliminate the long and detailed method of ordering steel, now in general practice in the United States, numbers denoting various qualities and sizes will be used instead of lengthy specifications. The number system is already in use in Switzerland, Germany and several other European countries.

The Southern Pacific Co. in 1922 collected and reclaimed worn-out machinery to the amount of nearly $750,000.

BASKET OF MEAT MISSING

A young business man, returning from a trip recently, unthoughtfully boarded the wrong Illinois street car. The usual evening crowd caused him to stand on the platform. He saw a woman acquaintance, who had been downtown shopping, and knowing she had to change cars, helped her off to the curb, and in doing so picked up a basket filled with fresh country pork. He handed her the basket, but she said it did not belong to her. The man took the basket of meat to a friend's place of business nearby, thinking some one might call for it. The next morning he inquired at the street railway office for the owner. The owner was not found, and several persons took some of the meat to their homes. The young business man would not take any of it, but he believes he is in debt to the owner.—Indianapolis News.

Bells With Interesting Histories.
The bells of the old missions along the length of California must have interesting histories, but there is little of an authentic nature concerning them. One of them at Santa Ysabel, San Diego, lacks but seven years of being two hundred years old. It is marked "N. S. de Loreto, 1782," which means Our Lady of Loreto. The real origin of this bell is not known, but it is said to have been in service in Lower California where the missions were established 100 years before the mission fathers invaded Alta, Calif. These bells must have been a powerful aid to the fathers in gaining the attention and interest of the Indians and it seems that some facts concerning the castings should have been kept, but there appears to be nothing like an authentic record.
